BANQUET FOR HON. D. F. LAFEAN

Official Ground Breaking For the New Federal Building Next Monday Evening to be Followed by Banquet to Congressman Lafean.

Citizens of town will pay a fitting tribute to Congressman Daniel F. La-fean on Monday evening when they will hold a banquet in his honor at the Hotel Gettysburg. Apparently, politics have been entirely laid aside for the occasion. People of all parties will assemble to show their appreciation of the work done for our district by Mr. Lafean. Prior to the decease of the Merchants Association it was decided, by that body, to give Congressman Lafean a testimonial dinner. Fearful of their ability to complete arrangements they deemed publicity unwise at that time. Later it was decided to wait until the contract for the Federal Building was awarded and hold the ground-breaking celebration jointly with the banquet for Mr.
Lafean.

An impressive program has been arranged for the ground-breaking, at the site of the new building, six thirty o'clock Monday evening. President Judge Samuel McC. Swope will preside during the ceremony. Dr. J. A.
Singmaster, president of the Seminary, will deliver an address followed by congressman Lafean breaking ground.
Dr. J. W. C. O'Neal, as one of the town's most venerable residents, will assist Mr. Lafean at the ground breaking. The Citizens band will play during the occasion. A number of prominent men have been invited to be present, among them Chief Post Office Inspector Cortelyou, of Philadelphia; H. E. Lucas, district inspector; A. B. Stannard, contractor for the building, and S. S. Lewis, postmaster of York. Acceptances from some of these men have been received and all of them are expected to be here.

Immediately after the ceremony at Baltimore and High street, the banquet will begin at the Hotel Gettysburg. H. T. Weaver will act as toastmaster, and toasts will be responded to by Hon. William McSherry, Esq., Judge Swope and Dr. William A.
Granville, president of College. Subscriptions to the banquet, which costs two dollars a plate, are being received by the committee in charge, Postmaster C. Wm. Beales, John Brebm and William A. McClean, Esq. Great credit is due the business men of the town who are active in this demonstration of esteem for Congressman Lafean. It is generally acknowledged by people with opposing views to Mr.
Lafean's political party that he has done more work for his district than any representative sent from this community. The idea of this testimonial seems to be taken up by everyone and arrangements are being made for a large crowd Monday night.

JOHN W. KIME

was aged 39 years and 13 days.

He is survived by his wife and a large family of children, also by his father, Taylor Kime, of Franklin township and several brothers.

Funeral will be held Saturday at 9 o'clock, services and interment at Mt.
Carmel Church.

ON 10,000 MILE BICYCLE TRIP

Harry E. Miller and Wife, of Toronto, Canada Deliver Message from Mayor of Toronto to President Taft. One Year For Trip.

On June 3d, 1911, Mr. and Mrs.
Harry E. Miller, left the mayor's office, in Toronto, Canada, bearing a message to the president of the United States. The journey is to be made in one year from the starting time on bicycles, and the messengers are required to cover 10,000 miles before they return.

Mr. Miller says that British subjects, especially in Canada, do not show the proper appreciation of advantages offered by out door living, and the proposed adventure on which they have entered is to encourage out door life. As a rule Englishmen are strong advocates of all major sports, but the English women are rather given to the luxuries of home life, and social entertainment. A prize of $1000 in gold is offered by the Canadian Associated Press and Toronto Social Club for the successful performance of the 10,000 mile bicycle trip through the United States on which "Riding Miller," and his wife, as they are known, have entered. They left Toronto with out any money, and make their expenses by selling postal cards. The cyclists made a trip over the battlefield this morning and will continue their journey by way of Harrisburg thence through the Cumberland Valley and on down into Virginia, covering the Eastern and Middle States. In each city where a stop is made for the night, they get the signature of the postmaster and mayor.

The message has been delivered to President Taft, who is returning a message to the Mayor of Toronto, by the cyclists. The mileage registered on reaching Gettysburg was 3353 miles.

CHILDREN'S DAY AT CHAUTAUQUA

Wednesday Afternoon Given to Entertaining Boys and Girls.
Evening, Musical Program and Character Impersonations.

The program for Wednesday's Chautauqua was some what altered in order that the entertainers might more effectively perform their parts. Mr. da Silva, the Portuguese singer and reader, could work to better advantage during the afternoon. Owing to a temporary throat affection, he feared the night air and Mr. Abbott's line of work, which requires the use of grease paint, is brought out more satisfactorily under the calcium light.

The afternoon session was expressly arranged for entertaining children.
It being Children's Day, all the young sters were admitted free who were accompanied by adults, and the 500 in the audience was made up principally of young Americans.

Dr. Edwin E. Sparks,
President of Pennsylvania State College

Mr. da Silva, with the assistance of Mrs. Scorer and Miss Lily Bartholomay held their attention for two hours, answering repeated encores.
Mrs. Scorer features prominently in her particular line of entertainment as a whistling soloist and her pleasing personality is a strong rival for predominance over her musical accomplishments. Miss Lily Bartholomay, the piano accompanist, who is a student of the Peabody Conservatory of Music, Baltimore, performs with exceptional grace and expression. Her work shows advanced theoretical attainment in music and correlative power of execution.

After the band had finished a free concert on the grounds at 8 o'clock they were assembled on the platform to open the evening session. Mrs. Scorer accompanied by Miss Bartholomay, rendered two whistling solos, the "Flower Song," and "There is no Girl Like Your Old Girl." Mr. Abbott, was next introduced by George L.
Kieffer. He opened his performance with a short talk on optimistic philosophy, explaining the difficulties under which an entertainer often labors.

The campaign for the sale of tickets to insure a Chautauqua for the next summer, looks very encouraging. The number of tickets pledged at the opening of Wednesday's evening session was 325. The campaign closes on Saturday night. This leaves 175 tickets to be pledged, during the remaining time.

This morning the directors held a meeting to take up a plan of work for next summer. Dr. Scorer says that he has never attended the opening of any Chautauqua where the prospect looked so bright for the future. It is the purpose of the directors to go into detail on Dr. Scorer's plans today. Gettysburg should have a permanent Chautauqua and no effort will be spared to bring this about.

Dr. Edwin E. Sparks is registered at the Eagle Hotel and will be on the grounds today. The program for this evening and Friday afternoon follows:
7.30—Free Concert, Gettysburg Band.
8.00—Prelude by S. M. Spedon, the Cartoonist and Chalk Talker, of New York City.

8.15—p. m.—Lecture: Dr. Edwin E.
Sparks, President Pennsylvania
State College. Subject, Simple Virtues.

Friday, August 25.
a. m.—Tours of the Battlefield.
2.00 p. m.—Prelude.
2.15—Entertainment by S. M. Spedon, Cartoonist.
4.00 p. m.—Social Hour.

FUNERAL RITES OVER J. W. GATES Dead Financier Lauded by Officiating Clergymen.

MANY PROMINENT MEN ATTEND

Last Respects Paid to His Memory by a Host of Friends and Admirers in the Black-Draped Assembly Room of Hotel Plaza.

New York, Aug. 24.—With prayer, music and eulogy the funeral services over the body of John W. Gates, the financier who recently died in Paris, were held in the large assembly room of the Hotel Plaza.

The lofty chamber was draped in black streamers, but brilliant banks of flowers hid the walls. At the south end of the room the coffin rested on pedestals half concealed in a bower of lilies of the valley and orchids. Looming up on a black background a large white cross stood prominent.

The room was filled with men prominent in the life of the country, and here and there a woman was seen. The balcony boxes on the mezzanine floor, which were draped in black cloth, were occupied by friends and acquaintances of the dead capitalist.

At the religious rites two ministers and a bishop officiated. An orchestra rendered Mozart's "Ave Verum Corpus," and Schumann's "Trauerlied," at the close, was given by Franko with orchestral accompaniment. Three hymns sung by a quartet completed the musical part of the service.

The body lay in an African mahogany coffin. When the last person had viewed the body, the start for Woodlawn cemetery was made. The honorary pallbearers formed an aisle, down which the coffin was carried to the automobile hearse waiting at the curb. The cortege moved up Fifth avenue on its way to Woodlawn, where interment took place.

The Rev. J. W. La Grone, of Port Arthur, Tex., who had come up to New York with Bishop Neely to attend the funeral, stepped in front of the coffin and addressed the congregation. He spoke of the dead financier in an intimate way, and said that he had had opportunities to see a side of Mr. Gates' life which was closed to business associates.

"I had the privilege of being intimately associated and acquainted with Mr. Gates because I visited his mother in her last illness," said the preacher. "He opened up his heart to me and gave me a place there, and so I observed that side of his life and spirit which was possibly not disclosed to the world."

"As I view the life of Mr. Gates in his business relations, I see that his associates looked upon him as a great battler, all ready for action. He was a mighty man. I saw the beautiful side of his character and found him a sympathetic and loving man. He often spoke to me of the plans he had made for our city in far-away Texas. We feel in Port Arthur that we have lost our greatest friend."

The church paid its tribute no less feelingly than the former associates of Mr. Gates. Men prominent in finance, steel and other big industries were there and took part in the solemn rites. Even the race track had a big representation.

The honorary pallbearers were: John S. Harris, J. S. Cullinane, Alired Clifford, Arnold Schlaet, John A. Drake, Charles M. Scwab, James Hopkins, John J. Mitchell, Edwin Hawley, E. W. Ogleby, Alvin W. Krech, R. H. Woodworth, Sir Donald Mann, Harry S. Black, Grant B. Schley, C. J. Smith, L. H. Lapham, John A. Topping, W. C. Hogg, Walter B. Shart, L. C. Hanna, Frank A. Vanderlip, John Lambert, G. Watson French, James C. Hutchins, the Hon. J. G. Cannon and J. A. Wolford.

John W. Gates left an estate valued at $20,000,000 to $10,000,000, according to former Justice Henry A. Gildersleeve, who drew Mr. Gates' will, a year ago last spring.

The bulk of his estate is left to his widow and his son, Charles G. Gates, equally, according to Mr. Gildersleeve. There is a clause which provides that none of the property can be sold within ten years. It is said, unless one of the heirs dies. Mr. Gates' idea was that all properties in which he had invested would be greatly enhanced in that time.

The beneficiaries under the will also include relatives, friends and former employees, the total amount of whose legacies will aggregate about $1,000,000 in bequests ranging from $100 to $200,000.

Smudged Counterfeit Out.
Washington, Aug. 24.—A counterfeit $5 bill on the Fort Dearborn National Bank of Chicago has been brought to the attention of the treasury department. The counterfeit is a photographic reproduction, on paper of fair quality, but the seal has a smudged appearance, and the bill, in the opinion of treasury officials, should not deceive any one accustomed to handling money.

SOCIETY WOMAN FIGHTS FLAMES

Mrs. Vanderbilt Directs Fire Fighters at Her Farm.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 24.—When fire threatened destruction of all the buildings at the big Vanderbilt farm at Sandy Point, Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt went right to the scene and took charge of the employees who fought the flames. The fire spread rapidly from one building to another. Flames reached the building that held the big power plant, and some of the machinery was damaged.

While it was not learned how the flames started, when they got under way, fanned by a stiff breeze from the ocean, it did not seem that the buildings would long withstand them. The flames leaped from one to another, till several buildings had caught fire.

Mrs. Vanderbilt called in all the workmen about the place. Those who were in the fields ran in and joined with others about the place while she directed them from one building to another with hose and buckets of water. Finally, when the fire caught the power plant building, Mrs. Vanderbilt rushed all the men there and had them turn the hose on the roof. She knew that this building must be saved at any cost or the operations of the farm must cease. While she stood off some distance, she sent men here and there to reach the flames and finally put them out. The damage was estimated at $10,000.

A DIPLOMATIC MISSION
By MARJORIE CLOUGH
Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

"Count," said the minister of foreign affairs to a young diplomat who had entered his service, "I wish you to get ready to leave Berlin tonight. Changes have occurred in China affecting the German, French and English interests there. If we reach England before the French cabinet can send an emissary England will act with us, for we can so represent the matter that it will appear to be to her interest to do so. If France is ahead of us England's action will be reversed. Here is a suit case containing all the papers you will need. Go at once to London and, without waiting to make a toilet, thence to the foreign office in Downing street. Endeavor to make the minister commit himself before you leave him."

Count Otto von Holwig left Berlin on the evening train for Ostend, intending to cross the English channel at that point. On the same train was a lady who, on coming to one of the main stops, alighted from her car and, passing along toward the rear, looking in at the open doors, finally entered the compartment occupied by the ambassador. She took a seat and threw her head back on to the cushion with every appearance of suffering.

Besides Von Holwig there were two men and a woman in the compartment, all of whom cast glances toward and appeared to take an interest in the suffering woman. She held her handkerchief to her face so that they could not see what she looked like and now and again emitted a low groan. The other woman in the compartment asked if she could do anything for her, but the invalid without speaking repulsed her by a wave of the hand.

Presently the sufferer started up and exclaimed, "It's all gone!" The men noticed that she was beautiful, and the smile she wore was a winning change from the evidences of agony she had given vent to. "And now," she added, "I must explain to you good people. I am a sufferer from facial neuralgia. When one of the attacks leaves me I need a brace." She took a gold mounted flask from a bag and several tiny glasses. Filling one of the glasses, she handed it to one of the men, who took it. Then, filling another glass, she handed it to the next man, who tried to beg off. But a certain winning, dominating force that was about her prevailed. The next man she offered a drink was Von Holwig. He declined, and the lady could not persuade him. She then gave a glass to her woman fellow passenger, who after a fruitless effort to put it aside accepted it.

After all who held glasses had emptied them the lady brought out a box of cigarettes, which she likewise passed around. This also the count refused. But the lady gave him a look as if to accuse him of insulting her by this second refusal, and he gave in.

When the train stopped again the lady who had facial neuralgia left the compartment, closing the door behind her. A fat old gentleman opened it to enter and paused. There were three men and a woman asleep. The compartment was full of cigarette smoke to which was attached a strange odor. The old man called the guard and pointed to the sleepers.

"There's been a robbery here," said the guard. "These people have been drugged. Ten to one all their money has been taken." He shook one of the men, who gradually opened his eyes and looked at him dazed. Then another and another was aroused. Von Holwig among the number. He awoke with a start and looked about him for his suit case.

"Lost anything, sir?" asked the guard.
Von Holwig, white as a sheet, did not reply for some time, then answered, "No." He knew that he had been tricked by a woman and did not propose to give away state secrets. He left the car, sat down on a bench and tried to recover from both the effect of the drug he had smoked and the ruin of his career as a diplomat.

On the boat at Ostend on which passengers were gathering to cross the channel to Dover a gentleman stood looking anxiously up the way that led to the steamer. Now and again he would take out his watch impatiently and note the time. But five minutes remained before the boat would start, and the gentleman had given a sigh, indicating that some one he was looking for would not come, when a cab, the driver lashing his horse, came galloping down the street. The gentleman hurried to the dock and handed out a lady, who held in her hand a suit case.

"Good," he said. "You have won, and you shall have your reward. Go to Paris and report that your mission was successful, and there is good reason to believe that upon the foundation you have laid I shall be able to bring England to our views."

The next morning before dawn M. Cavier, representing the French government, drew up before the London residence of the secretary for foreign affairs, called him out of bed and announced that certain affairs in China required his immediate attention. The secretary discussed the matter in a dressing gown, and the French ambassador when he left carried with him the assurance that such orders as he desired would be issued.

BEATTIE JURY COMPLETE

The Taking of Testimony Was Begun This Morning.

WIFE'S UNCLE FIRST WITNESS

The Alleged Wife Slayer Faces a Jury of Which Nine of Its Members Are Lean and Bronzed Farmers.

Chesterfield Courthouse, Va., Aug. 24.—The jury which will decide whether Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., of Richmond, shall go to the electric chair, convicted of wife murder, was completed in battered old Chesterfield courthouse.

The battle for a human life began at 10 o'clock this morning, to which hour the court had adjourned. The commonwealth then called its first witness.

The prisoner was locked up for the night in the small jail here, and was not returned to the Richmond jail during the night. His gray-haired father embraced him and journeyed home in a dusty public conveyance surrounded by the curious throng.

Made up almost entirely of lean, bronzed-faced farmers, the jury, as completed, follows the lines indicated by Monday's selections. The names of the twelve men, as they remain after the defense exercised its four peremptory challenges on the panel of sixteen, are as follows:

No. 1—N. W. Farley, quarryman, thirty-seven years old.

No. 2—E. L. Wilson, farmer, thirty-eight years old.

No. 3—A. L. Fetteroff, contractor, thirty-four years old.

No. 4—Irving L. Bass, Jr., farmer, thirty years old.

No. 5—V. W. Fuqua, farmer, twenty-seven years old.

No. 6—W. L. Burgess, farmer, fifty-two years old.

No. 7—M. E. Purdie, farmer, twenty-seven years old.

No. 8—M. C. Robinson, farmer, forty-four years old.

No. 9—Thomas A. Hancock, farmer, thirty-seven years old.

No. 10—Lewis Robertson, farmer, forty-four years old.

No. 11—W. P. Rooks, farmer, forty-eight years old.

No. 12—M. E. Blankenship, assistant superintendent of a silk mill, thirty-eight years old.

Nine of the jurymen are farmers, and all have declared themselves as not opposed to capital punishment.

Beattie Aids in Selection.

Beattie conferred earnestly with his lawyers and studied intently the faces in the full panel of sixteen men before the defense decided on its eliminations. Then, after a moment of whispered conversation with H. M. Smith, Jr., his chief counsel, the prisoner nodded his head and the clerk announced that the names of four farmers selected on Monday were dropped from the list.

In charging the jurors, who will be kept during the trial at an old tavern near the courthouse, Judge Walter A. Watson simply set forth the law of Virginia as applicable to homicide. As the indictment covers all degrees from the first degree to involuntary manslaughter, he explained that the defendant might be found guilty accordingly.

"If you find him guilty of murder in the first degree," said the court, "you shall say so and nothing more, in which event the punishment shall be death, but if you find him guilty of murder in the second degree you shall say so, and shall fix his punishment by confinement in the penitentiary at not less than five nor more than eighteen years."

After citing the penalty for lesser degrees of manslaughter, the court concluded with the words that "if you find the prisoner not guilty of any of the offenses charged you shall say so and no more."

Thomas Owen, an uncle of Mrs. Beattie, to whose home Henry brought the body with a tale of a bearded highwayman firing into his automobile from the roadway, was the first witness called for the commonwealth this morning.

Youth Locked in Car May Die

Reading, Pa., Aug. 24.—After he had been confined in a box car for three days without food or drink, George Reed, eighteen years old, of Pittsburg, was found in a dying condition by employees of the Philadelphia and Reading railway at Tanqua. A special engine was procured by the workmen, and the youth was hurried to a hospital, where but little hope for his recovery is entertained. The youth had boarded the car at Philadelphia three days ago. The car had been sidetracked at the Tanqua yards before the discovery had been made.

ARRESTS TO BREAK LYNCHING SILENCE

District Attorney Promises Big Raid at Coatesville.

Coatesville, Pa., Aug. 24.—After a long conference with Deputy Attorney General Cunningham and Major Grooms in Philadelphia, District Attorney Gawthrop and his assistant, H. L. Sproat, came to Coatesville and held a short conference with Chief of Police Umsted.

No other action was taken, but Mr. Gawthrop reiterated his statement that he intends to arrest every one who followed the mob that burned Zack Walker and by their actions showed that they sympathized with it.

Mr. Gawthrop is just as anxious to get the real leaders of the mob behind the bars as any one, but he has been greatly hindered in his work by the refusal of people who know the facts to talk. He has been criticised for arresting merely boys who "went along" with the mob and who are guilty in the eyes of the law, according to Judge Butler, but he asserts that he has refrained from placing men old enough to lead such a mob under arrest, for the reason that he has as yet been unable to get evidence enough to convict them.

"We have been unable to get people to talk," said Mr. Gawthrop. "There are people in this town who know who the leaders of this mob are, but they will not tell. There are other ways to get them to tell than those which we have been using, and perhaps they will wish they had come forward and given out any evidence the yhave before it is all over."

While the district attorney promises to make many arrests, he will not stipulate any time limit for making them, and they may be scattered over more than a month.

Detectives are at work in the town, and it is hoped by the authorities that they may unearth some evidence that will prove valuable in running to earth the men who hatched the plot.

Cordova, Alaska, Aug. 24.—Secretary of the Interior Fisher arrived at Katalla on the steamship Admiral Sampson, and was transferred to a revenue cutter which had been held for him.

The secretary can go only as far as Stillwater by boat. There he will don rubber boots for a six-mile march to several of the disputed coal fields.

G. A. R. VETERANS IN CONVENTION

President Taft Reviews Annual Parade of Old Soldiers.

MANY DROP OUT OF LINE

The Chief Interest of the Encampment Centers in the Election of a Commander-in-Chief—Ranks of Defenders Are Fast Thinning.

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 24.—The fast thinning ranks of the Grand Army of the Republic, gathered here for the forty-fifth national encampment, passed in review before President Taft.

The parade was the largest of its kind in several years, and the weather was ideal. The aged defenders of the Union walked rather than marched, many of them haltingly and with effort.

As they endeavored to keep step to the music of a score of bands and life and drum corps, some of them wearing knapsacks and carrying flags that saw service in the Civil War, they presented a sight that stirred the hearts of thousands.

Not all of the veterans were equal to the task of covering the entire line and scores dropped out before the parade reached the stand in Washington square, where President Taft reviewed the slowly moving pageant. The parade halted at frequent intervals to give the veterans an opportunity to rest.

President Taft, accompanied by his military aide and secretary, arrived here over the New York Central, and received Mayor Edgerton and the Grand Army reception committee in his private car.

Escorted by the Twenty-ninth infantry, United States regulars, from Fort Porter, the president was taken through the main streets. Bombs were fired during his progress.

In the reviewing stand with Mr. Taft were Adjutant General Verbeck, George Aldridge, Commander-in-Chief Gilman, Justice William E. Werner, Governor Reid, of Vermont, and his military staff; President Eastwood, of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce; Congressman Lanforth and others.

After reviewing the parade, President Taft was driven to the residence of former Senator and State Treasurer Thomas B. Dunn, escorted by a motorcycle detail.

In the evening the president went to the convention hall, to attend the annual camp fire, where he made an address to the veterans.

The chief interest of the convention centers in the contest for commander-in-chief at today's election of officers for the coming year.

Colonel John McElroy, of Washington, editor of the official organ of the G. A. R., the National Tribune, is making a big fight for the honor. His contestant in the field is Judge Harvey M. Trimble, of Illinois.

Both men have many loyal supporters, who have been on the ground booming their respective candidates.

The fight between these two men will be over pension bills, the details of which are familiar to every veteran. Colonel McElroy is in favor of the Sulloway bill, and Judge Trimble is championing the Sherwood bill. Both of the bills are for increased pensions for the veterans who fought in the Civil War.

ELEVEN TAKE BLACK VEIL

Young Women Join Catholic Order at Reading, Pa.

Reading, Pa., Aug. 24.—In the pretty chapel of the mother house of the St. Bernardine Sisters, in this city, eight young women made a solemn profession and eleven took the black veil of the order.

The Rev. Peter Massolin, of Allentown, was the celebrant of the mass, and the sermon was preached by the Rev. Alfred Wroblewski, of South Bethlehem, a former German count, who renounced his estates to enter the church.

Those taking the black veil were young women of Polish birth from the coal regions.

British Strike Losses Heavy

London, Aug. 24.—The weekly traffic returns of the big railroads testify to the enormous losses resulting to the companies from last week's railway strike. The London and North-western railways' report shows a decrease of $565,000 in receipts for the week compared with the corresponding week of 1910.

Celebrates 103d Birthday

New London, Conn., Aug. 24.—In full possession of her faculties and able to go about without assistance, Mrs. Mary Anne Peterson, of this city, is celebrating the completion of her 103d year. Her memory is excellent, and she recalls vividly many events of ninety years ago.

In most instances of the "bad" boy the trouble likely is not half so much due to any inherent badness as to a lack of sympathy and real interest in parent or guardian and to a failure to properly direct the outgo of his physical and nervous energy. An engine is a mighty dangerous proposition with steam up and a broken rail ahead; so, too, a team of horses in a runaway with a mover. The bad boy is like both when off the track or lacking wise guidance and restraint.

NEW TALES THAT ARE TOLD

The First Comer.

Prof. W. Lawson Tall, apropos of the new serum cure for hay fever, said at a medical banquet in Denver: "This cure is the result of patience, the result of much patient toil. Indeed, when I think of the patient waiting involved in the perfecting of this cure I am reminded of Dr. Bob Sawyer's anteroom."

"Dr. Bob Sawyer stepped proudly into his anteroom one day. There were quite eight or nine persons there. And Dr. Bob, looking from one face to another with complacency, said:

"HERE, DOC, THAT'S ME," SAID SNIP.

"Well, who comes first? Who's been waiting the longest?"

"Here, doc—that's me," said Snip, the tailor, rising and flourishing his unpaid bill. "I've been waiting over eighteen months."—Pittsburg Gazette-Times.

The Best Did Win

The story of a pretty compliment to Senator Root was repeated the other day at the Union League club in New York.

"When Root was a mooted candidate for the presidency of the club," said the narrator, "he met one day here a rival candidate. The two men conversed cordially for awhile, and then, as they were separating, the subject of the forthcoming election came up."

"Well," said Root, "may the best man win?"

"But his rival answered with great politeness and sincerity:

"I hope not, Mr. Root."

HOW CHAMP CLARK TRIED TO ENLIST

Boy's Blood Fired by a Charge of Cavalry.

When Clark was a child his mother died, and his father, an itinerant dentist, who rode the Kentucky hill country with one end of his saddle bags filled with the instruments of torture of his profession, while the other was balanced across the mare's back by a copy of the Bible, put the boy out to work for John Call, a farmer. John could not read, but he took a great interest in politics and agreed with the boy that he would subscribe for Prentiss' paper, the old Louisville Journal, provided young Clark would read it to him.

While Clark was working for Call Morgan and his men came through that region, and Call put the boy on the back of a magnificent chestnut mare and told him to take the horses to the woods, for Morgan had a fine eye for a good horse. He started, but just then the vanguard of that daring body of cavalry burst into view at a turn in the road, the evening sun shining on their equipment. The boy paused. At that moment seven home guards dashed out of the village and charged the Morgan men. It was all over in a few minutes. The incident of the charge fired the fighting blood of the boy, and he stole away the next day to enlist in a company being raised in the country. He stood on his tiptoes and swelled out his chest, but they would not take him. Later he tried to get into a regiment that came through the region where he lived, but he was still too young.—Columbian.

Refined Repartee

Booth Tarkington was talking in Indianapolis about the stage.

"There were two actresses in an early play of mine," he said, "both very beautiful, but the leading actress was thin. She quarreled one day at rehearsal with the other lady, and she ended the quarrel by saying laughingly: 'Remember, please, that I am the star.'"

"Yes, I know you're the star," the other retorted, eying with an amused smile the leading actress' long, slim figure. 'But you'd look better, my dear, if you were a little meteor.'"

If ignorance were only bliss the world would be much happier.—Mansfield

HOG WISDOM.

A hog needs all his time to make pork and should not be expected to spend any moments fighting lice.

Clover and skim milk are almost indispensable in the ration of the growing pig.

The man who can raise hogs profitably without pasture can increase his profits many fold by using pasture.

All breeds of hogs look good when taken care of, and all of them will yield good money if rightly handled.

If the pig is stunted in its food at any stage of its life it can never become a perfect pork producer.

A hog can be starved to eat almost anything, but seldom does well on spoiled food.

One way to improve land rapidly is to pasture hogs upon it.

Too many farmers have failed to appreciate the possibilities of rye as hog pasture.

No farmer can have complete success raising hogs unless he has a good grain pasture, and young hogs can be fattened more profitably than those that are older.

The 300 pound pig at eight months is the master work of a feeder.

SILAGE FOR SHEEP.

Produces Excellent Results When Properly Fed.

This is a feed that has been considerably discussed of late. Owing to the feeding of poor silage and the feeding of too much of it, hundreds of sheep were killed when farmers first began to feed it, writes C. A. Waugh in Farm and Fireside. After losing some sheep the ordinary man would discontinue the feed, never to use it again. As a matter of course, these men have not recommended it very highly, and a general prejudice has come up against its use.

But this is entirely unfounded, for silage when fed right can be made a valuable part of the ration, and, as its cost is small, it helps to make up a cheap ration. In the first place, it must not be fed in excessive amounts.
Too much silage causes too much acid in the stomach and is sure to cause trouble. Thus it should be fed only in limited amounts. Few feeders give more than one and one half pounds a day. Silage that is put up in bad shape or that is molded in the least cannot be given to sheep, as it will be sure to result in trouble. Most of the men using it throw the poor silage aside and let it waste. In many cases the silage is given once a day while hay or some other roughage is

The Southdown breed of sheep is generally considered to hold the position of being the best mutton sheep. The ewes are prolific breeders and excellent mothers. The size is medium, the body round and deep and the breast broad. The back is broad and level, the rump square and full and the thigh full and massive. The legs are short, with fine bone. The Southdown has become thoroughly naturalized in this country. The picture shows a Southdown wether of good form.

given at night. In the case of fattening lambs the grain feed is thrown in on top of the silage.

When fed right silage does the lambs good rather than hurts them. But recently I visited a plant where some 3,200 so called pewee lambs were being fed. Handling this class of lambs requires a great deal of skill. In this case part were not given silage, as the barns were too far from the silos.
About half were silage fed, and the rest were not. During the past feeding season the loss among the dry fed lambs has been heavier than the loss among the silage lambs.

The proving of the value of silage for sheep makes the silo more available for the general farmer. Formerly we had the idea that it was profitable only for the dairyman, and so the man with a few cows could not afford to invest. Its value with beef cattle has been demonstrated. A certain amount must be fed each day to prevent spoiling, and so this becomes possible when the feed can be given to all the animals on a small farm that carries sheep as well as beef and dairy cattle.

Feed Stock Liberally.
Any farm animal that does a large amount of work needs and wants a good supply of feed. Hard work makes a good appetite, whether the animal be a work horse pulling a plow or a milk cow filling a big pail twice a day. Both are machines, and both must have fuel. Upon the quantity and utilization of this fuel will depend the amount of work done. A good milk cow must be a good feeder, and then she must have a good supply of the right kind of feed.

WHY LATE HATCHES OBT FAIL.

There are reasons why late hatches are often small and the chicks hard to raise, and we give them here for the information of those who have been unsuccessful.

Eggs are often incubated from breeders that are about exhausted from the exactions of months in the breeding pens and eggs that do hatch give weak chicks. This condition is often met by fanciers by mating hens that have rested while hatching and brooding chicks to males that have been kept in reserve in cellars. Eggs are often collected carelessly or stored in a warm place. The hot henhouse, the broody hen, the warm or musty place where eggs are stored are detrimental and affect the hatchability of eggs as well as the vigor of the embryos.

ALFALFA, SHADE, IDEAL FOR LATE CHICKS.

Many are not particular as to the breed from which they select eggs for late hatching. Late chicks from big breeds cannot mature to bring any profit in winter, and these chicks, so slow to grow, often get rumpy at the first frost and are a menace to the flock.

Smaller breeds are best for late hatching, as they mature quickly and often come round in time to swell the winter profits, the big breeds paying better for soft roasters from February to April.

Late chicks often get poor care.
They are no novelty and aren't received with the enthusiasm that greeted the first peeps. They are thus often placed on fouled ground, cleaned of every eatable thing, are housed in

A LATE BUNCH.

dirty, lousy coops and kept with older chicks that bully them out of their feed.

Lie, that multiply so fast in the heat, are allowed to infest them, and with crowding, poor ventilation, lack of shade and fresh water they are up against it.

Allowance is not made for the fact that heat requires a change of ration, that corn should not be fed so freely, that feed should not be so abundant, but cooling and digestible, and that meat must be supplied to substitute for insect life that has disappeared.

This little story is the result of our observation of conditions where late hatches were generally poor and few of the chicks were raised and we think mainly explains why late hatches often result in failure.

DON'TS.

Don't count your prize winners before they have won the cups.

Don't strain at a hen house and swallow a skyscraper. The sins that other folks commit, compared to yours, may look like nit.

Don't substitute dry ground bone for green cut bone when it is only lime

15 per cent protein and 23 per cent fat, maybe cut yourself at half the price.
